GREENE COUNTY PLANNING COMMISSION

MISSION AND VISION STATEMENT

MISSION STATEMENT

The Greene County Planning Commission strives to comply with all the procedures and processes outlined in the Pennsylvania Municipalities Planning Code (MPC).

VISION

The Greene County Planning Commission is focused on promoting the safety and security of its community by following smart growth practices, enforcing the Greene County Subdivision and Land Development Ordinance (SALDO), and by using the MPC as the main planning tool.

COUNTY INFORMATION

LOCATION: Greene County is in the southwestern corner of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It is bounded on the north by Washington County, on the east by the Monongahela River that separates it from Fayette County, on the south by the Mason-Dixon Line at West Virginia and on the west by the West Virginia Panhandle. Greene County contains 577 square miles and has a population of 38,686 people in its six boroughs and twenty townships.

HISTORY: The County was formed by an act of Legislature on February 9, 1796 in honor of General Nathaniel Greene. Colonel John Minor, sponsor of the bill, is called the Father of Greene County. A board of trustees was authorized to buy a tract of land near the center of the county to build a courthouse, county jail, etc. According to a deed dated October 28, 1796, the trustees brought 150.5 acres of land called “Eden” from Thomas & Eleanor Slater for $2,376. They named it Waynesburg after General Anthony Wayne because he led the army that successfully defeated the Indians in the Northwest (Ohio) Territory in 1794. On September 29, 1797, they offered 201 lots for sale at prices ranging from $5 to $145. They erected a log courthouse and jail. The courthouse still stands but is not recognizable due to extensive remodeling. The first store was established by William Crawford who purchased a “load” of goods from a settlement along the Monongahela River in the early 1800's and began trading. There were 80 dwellings in Waynesburg in 1843. By 1906 it had reached 350.

POPULATION: Greene County's population and economy have always been strongly related to the County's natural features. The hilly topography, the Monongahela River, and abundant subsurface coal reserves have dominated the County's settlement patterns and its livelihood, concentrating population in the eastern portion of the County and focusing employment (in the 20th Century) on bituminous coal mining. Since the turn of the century, mining has replaced agriculture as the leading industry. As coal related activities expanded in the 1920's and demand for coal slackened in the 1960's, the County's population contracted, and working age families migrated out of the County. In 1960 the population was 39,424; by 1970 it dropped to 36,090. When the energy crisis had reestablished the demand for coal, the 1980 census showed an increase of population to 40,476. Going into the 2000s, the population has stabilized to around 40,672, with 6,049 individuals in the six (6) boroughs and 34,623 in the twenty (20) townships. The current 2010 estimate on population has 38,686 people in the County; this is a decrease of 1,986 residents in the last 10 years.

TOPOGRAPHY: Greene County is located in the Central Unglaciated Allegheny Plateau as characterized by rugged and irregular topography consisting of narrow valleys sloping steeply to narrow ridge tops. This area is heavily forested and contains major bituminous coal deposits. Greene County contains some of the most difficult topography in the region and is one of the least developed areas. The Allegheny Plateau ranges from 750 feet above sea level at the Monongahela River to 1600 feet at its highest point. Currently, the topography of the County has been impacted by the Marcellus Shale industry and related gas well development.

LAND USE: Of the county's 577 square miles, a small percentage of the county is developed, primarily along the Monongahela River on the high plains in the eastern portions of the county. There are small unincorporated villages throughout the county and a considerable amount of residential development scattered along narrow bands of gently to moderately sloping land adjacent to County roads. Developed areas include Waynesburg-Franklin Township area along Routes 21 and 188 and Interstate 79, the Carmichaels/Cumberland area, and an area along Ten Mile Creek between Clarksville and Jefferson Borough. These areas tend to have most of the County's community facilities and services.

On August 14, 2008 the Greene County Commissioners adopted the Greene County Comprehensive Plan (A Strategy for a Greene Tomorrow) after it was recommended by the Greene County Planning Commission. One objective of the plan was to "utilize a comprehensive plan as the blueprint to move the county forward in a positive direction".

TRANSPORTATION: Interstate 79 runs north and south through Greene County. The County is also serviced by State Route 21 running east to west and Route 19 running south to north. There are 584 miles of state roads in the county and 935 miles of municipal roads. The railroads servicing the County are: Norfolk Southern and the Cumberland Mine Railroad. There is one (1) general aviation airport facility, owned and operated by the County and known as the Greene County Airport.

The Greene County Airport Master Plan and Airport Layout Plan were adopted by the County Commissioners in the summer of 2008. The plan looked at the existing airport inventory, activity forecasts, facility requirements, an environmental overview, airport plans, and a capital improvement plan.

In December 2008, the Chairman of the Planning Commission requested that the Infrastructure Committee reconvene to focus on road issues within the county. A point of emphasis for the committee will be to research the possibility that the Greene County Subdivision and Land Development Ordinance is hindering development. A second point of emphasis will be on local paving specifications and how the local governing body and the Planning Commission differ. The committee started working on this topic in February 2009 (as of the date of this report, the committee had met with PA DOT and SPC).

PUBLIC UTILITIES: Greene County receives utility services from many public and private entities. Allegheny Power Company (formerly West Penn Power Company) provides electric service to the county. Carnegie Natural Gas Co., Columbia Gas of PA, INC., Conklin Gas & Oil, Equitable Gas Co., Greenridge Oil, Inc. of PA, and Peoples Natural Gas Company provide Natural Gas to Greene County. Telephone Service is provided by Alltel of PA, Inc., AT&T Communications of PA, Inc., MCI Telecommunications Corp., Short Line Telephone Co., and West Side Telephone Company. Local municipalities, authorities and other private companies provide water and sewage services.

VOTING: Statistics supplied by Elections from the year 2008 show that there 25,308 registered voters in Greene County distributed among 44 voting precincts. Out of this total 17,018 are registered Democrats and 6,630 are registered Republicans. An additional 1,660 voters subscribe to other affiliations.

RECREATION: On August 14, 2008 the Greene County Commissioners adopted the Comprehensive Parks, Recreation, and Trails/Greenways Plan after it was recommended by the Greene County

Planning Commission. The mission statement for the document states, “The County will implement practical strategies for the efficient allocation of resources by capitalizing upon public and private partnerships to develop a variety of recreational facilities that are available to all residents.” This plan is a thorough review of the County’s inventory of trails, park and other recreational facilities and also notes recreational opportunities for future planning.

Greene County has over 10,800 acres of parks, recreation and open public space. It also has 71 miles of hiking trails (which are mostly located in the State Game Lands). There are also local pools, parks, the Greene River Trail, the Warrior Trail, and several golf courses. Additionally, the numerous fairs, festivals, and other events provide the community with special events throughout the year.

MEDIAN HOUSEHOLD INCOME: The 2000 census reported that the Median Household Income (MHI) or the middle figure of all incomes for Greene County was $30,352. That amount was $11,642 lower than the National Median Income of $41,994. None of the Greene County’s municipalities had a higher figure than the national average. Washington Township, with a median household income of $39,492, was the highest in the county.

EDUCATION: Education is provided in Greene County by five (5) public school districts, one (1) private schools, home-schooling, one (1) vocational technical school, one (1) community college, one (1) fully accredited four year university and numerous day care and nursery school facilities.

MEDIA: Greene County is served by two (2) Daily Newspapers, The Observer Reporter and The Herald Standard and one (1) weekly paper, The Greene County Messenger. There are also two (2) radio stations in the County, WANB Waynesburg and WCYJ Waynesburg University.

EMPLOYMENT AND ECONOMY: Current estimates from the 2010 Census show that of the 17,201 individuals in the civilian labor force in Greene County, there were 16,086 employed and 1,113 unemployed. This unemployment totals 3.5% of the County's population and is a decrease of 1.2% since 2006.

The average weekly wage in Greene County rose from $669 in 2001 to $765 in 2006 according to the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry. Therefore, Greene County has seen a rise in average weekly wage of $95 in the last 6 years.

COUNTY FACILITIES: The County owns the Greene County Office Building, Courthouse, Jail Facilities, Ben Franklin Building, Fort Jackson County Building, the Greene County Fairgrounds and Airport. In addition, the County owns the Eastern and Central Swimming pools and operates Mon View Park.

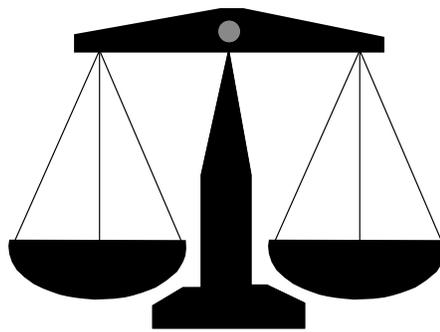

EMERGENCY SERVICES: The 911 offices are located in the Alltel Building on Greene Street in Waynesburg Borough. An enhanced 911 computer system and G.I.S. mapping are tools used to provide efficient and effective services to the constituents of Greene County.

MARCELLUS SHALE: The Marcellus Formation, which is a unit of sedimentary rock, is found in eastern North America. The shale contains largely untapped natural gas reserves and its proximity to Eastern seaboard demand markets make it an attractive and target for energy development. Greene County sits directly in the middle of the Marcellus Formation basin and has seen considerable growth in this industry over the last 18 months. Experts agree that the Marcellus Formation will create jobs and assist with the economy; but there are also environmental and other concerns associated with development.

MUNICIPALITIES PLANNING CODE

The Pennsylvania Municipalities Planning Code (MPC), originally enacted as Act 274 of 1968, establishes the basic authority for the exercise of municipal land use controls in Pennsylvania. It enables municipalities to plan for community development through preparation of a comprehensive development plan and to govern such development through zoning (with or without planned residential development procedures), subdivision and land development, and official map ordinances. The code provides for the establishment of planning commissions, planning departments, planning committees and zoning hearing boards and authorizes those bodies to charge fees, make inspections and hold public hearings. The code provides for appropriations, appeals and penalties for violations.

PLANNING REPORT

Organization

The Greene County Planning Commission was created by the act of the Board of Greene County Commissioners on May 29, 1956, as authorized by Section 2001 of Act No. 130 of the county code as amended.

The Planning Commission consists of nine members, the appointment and terms of which are provided for by the County Commissioners under the authority of the Municipalities Planning Code (MPC) Act 247 as amended and reenacted. The Commission has adopted its own by-laws that govern operations. Staff from the Greene County Department of Economic Development assists the Planning Commission in its duties.

The Planning Commission met monthly in 2011 at 7:00 p.m. on the first Monday of each month in the second floor conference room in the Greene County Office Building at 93 East High Street in Waynesburg, Pennsylvania.

Purpose

The Function of the Greene County Planning Commission is to plan for the desirable growth and development of the county. The Planning Commission plans for solutions to countywide problems and for longer periods of time than is usually considered in public and private decision making. The Planning Commission seeks to coordinate public and private decisions which affect the future of the county, and identify and find solutions which affect the future of county development. The Planning function is to look to the future for the purpose of improving the well being of the community.

In carrying out these functions, the Planning Commission acts as an advisory group to county and local governments in matters concerning the physical growth and development of the county. The Planning Commission also provides coordinating and advisory services to local planning commissions and provides countywide planning information generally to interested groups and citizens.

2012 AGENDA

The Planning Commission staff looks forward to working on projects that will be developed in 2012. The Planning Commission is an integral part of the implementation of the Greene County Comprehensive Plan, Airport Master Plan, the 100-Day Housing Plan and Policy, and Greene County Comprehensive Plan. They also have a role to play in the 2009 formation of the Redevelopment Authority of the County of Greene. The Commission will be challenged to look ahead at the future of the county and weigh how new development will impact this planning. Additionally, the Planning Commission will also need to weigh the impacts of the oil, gas and coal industry and its effects in our region; as we are seeing a large increase in industrial endeavors.

The following are important issues that the Planning Commission looks forward to discussing, debating, and dealing with in 2012:

- Water, sewer and road infrastructure improvements
- Continue the positive working relationship with our local elected officials
- Gas drilling and its impacts on property owners (Marcellus Shale)
- Land use issues such as Agricultural Security Areas (ASA) and Clean and Green
- Updating or modifying the Greene County Subdivision and Land Development Ordinance
- Collaborating with the Greene County Conservation District and interfacing more efficiently (code enforcement)
- Effectively monitor all environmental permits and public notices
- Processing all “Right to Know Requests” in a timely manner
- Work closely with the new Executive Director of the Redevelopment Authority on housing issues
- Implementation of the recently completed Housing Plan and Policy

2011 ACCOMPLISHMENTS
